

This week in: Mrs. Klaus' Class

We are learning:

Reading: We are working on our centers and reading groups based on student need. We will be focusing on using text evidence to answer comprehension questions, irregular/regular verbs, and using text to define unknown words. Our Letterland unit words for the week of Dec 9th will include -er, -ear-, and o sounding different in words (ex: above), and for the week of Dec 16th we will study -y (ex: spy, sleepy) and -rr words (We will be testing on List A, but practice the spelling rules and not just memorizing words :))

Writing: We will be working on narratives about being a paleontologist based on our EL unit

Math: We will be continuing our understanding place value unit and will be focusing on how place value matters when ordering numbers.

Science: We will be finishing our sound unit and will be using all the materials that we collected to create our own unique instrument which we will examine the pitch, volume and vibrations that are made.
